ABSTRACT:

English is a West German Language. Today millions of people around the world are learning English. English speakers currently outnumber native speakers and their numbers will keep increasing in the future. Non-native English speakers usually make errors in text and also vary in their complexity. Over 600 million speakers use English as a second language (ESL) or English as a foreign language (EFL). English is the dominating language in the field of science and technology. Still, in this current situation, maximum population worldwide are comfortable in speaking in their mother tongue and even don't know a bit of the English language which is not letting them to make use of most of the resources around them as most of them are in English. So my paper shows light on the importance of being a first-generation English learner in this modern world.
